Course Prerequisites/Co-requisites

No prerequisite knowledge is required to successfully complete this course.

Course Student Learning Outcomes

- Demonstrate an understanding of historical contexts and current applications for appropriate methods of teaching early childhood, elementary and secondary students and the impact of collaboration between home and school.
- Develop critical literacies through assigned readings, a series of written assignments and participation in group peer presentations addressing both historical and contemporary issues pertaining to home-school interactions. Ideas will be clearly organized and will demonstrate effective communication in interpersonal, small group, and large group settings. Assignments and brief research projects will incorporate the use of the college library system and online resources.
- Conduct research, explore the literature, and evaluate current collaborative practices between schools and families. A review of the literature provides an opportunity to see how statistical data explains these practices.

- Analyze contemporary educational practices, personal cultural and philosophical beliefs, and how these beliefs can impact classroom interaction with students and families of differing cultures or philosophies. Students will also make strong connections between teaching and child development including appropriate collaborations in an elementary or high school setting using critical problem-solving skills.
- Engage in vigorous dialogue with seasoned professionals to increase content knowledge and application. Current state and national issues will be explored; discussions focus on how these issues affect the home and school relationships.

Communication Plan

Example language:

- I will respond to email within 24 hours. I will offer feedback on major assignments within 7 days. The best way to contact me is via the Canvas Inbox, as I will prioritize this email over other modes of communication.
- In this course I will be posting interactive announcements which will offer specific opportunities for class questions and extra credit every other week.
- Additionally, I will be participating in the discussion forums with you to share my perspective within the discipline and to offer some nuances of interpretation that may not be present in your textbook.
- Lastly, we'll be holding small group Q & A sessions, where we can learn from our peers (and faculty) on some of the more difficult units within the course.

How to Succeed in the Course

To be successful in FHS 2180, thoroughly read the syllabus and each course component (Start Here, assignments, discussions). Each week review the Announcements and make sure to complete the week's work. Due dates are also posted on the course calendar.

- On Wednesday's discussions are due. These discussions provide opportunities for you to deeply consider various theoretical and practical aspects of college life, form opinions, and interact with your peers.
- Assignments are due on Sunday nights. Take the discussions and assignments seriously. All of the material in this course directly impacts your success as a college student and future practice as a teacher. To receive credit for your work, discussions and assignments are to be posted by the scheduled due date.
- Only work submitted by the scheduled due dates will receive points. If you need an extension due to extraordinary circumstance, there will be a 15%-point reduction for one day extension and a 25%-point reduction for a two-day extension. Contact me ahead of time for arrangements.

Written Work

Two of the many skills you need to master are how to write well and how to meet timelines.

Assignments and discussions are to be submitted in the "submission" boxes. (Refrain from posting work in the "comments" boxes.) All assignments must be:

- written by you
- original to this course
- at least one- to two-pages in length, double-spaced, 12 font
- written in APA format. In-text citations and References must follow APA style.

To receive full credit, work is to be submitted by the scheduled due date. Upon and email request prior to the due date, a one- to two-day extension may be granted due to extenuating circumstances. There will be a 15%-point reduction for one day extension and a 25%-point reduction for a two-day extension.

Grading

The Family and Human Studies Department has a standard grading system that is posted below. Your work is evaluated against rubrics and will be generated from assignments, discussions, quizzes, and a final exam.

Extra Credit??

This seminar does not provide extra credit opportunities.

Announcements and the Calendar

At the beginning of each week, I will post a "This Week" announcement noting the work that must be completed that week. You may always work ahead (all components are available from the first day of the semester). However, if you fall behind, your grade will be dramatically affected.

If changes are made to the course, I will make an announcement in Canvas.

Let's Stay in Touch!

It is extremely important to stay in touch with each other! Our methods of communication are via email and through phone calls. I make every attempt to respond to emails within a day. Please use the Canvas email, it is much easier for me to track our conversations. You can also post notes in the "Comments" boxes where you submit your work. I will respond to these notes as I grade your assignments and discussion points.

Coursework & Assignment Descriptions

Assignments (52% of your final grade)

Assignments are an important component to support your depth of understanding. Written responses will connect theories with your beliefs and create a forum for personal growth and insight. Assignments are to include information from the text, discussion points from class, and personal insights and opinions. Each assignment is to be at least one page long and will be graded on a ten-point scale (rubrics are posted on Canvas). To receive full credit, assignments must be submitted on time, well-written, and error-free using APA formatting (double-spaced, References). You may submit work early however late work will not receive a score.

Each paper must contain the following information on the front title page:

- your name
- the class and section
- the due date
- the title of the assignment.

50 Strategies Presentation

This semester, you will create a presentation focusing on one strategy to effectively communicate with families. You will select a topic from 50 Strategies and create an innovative presentation to share with your peers. You may choose to create a game, a video, a rap song, put together a panel, have friends join you through a skit, or any other ideas you may develop. Additional information is posted on Canvas under 50 Strategies Presentation.

Parent Program Presentation

Near the end of the semester, you will create a second presentation that focuses on a parenting program. The purpose of the presentation is to provide an opportunity for you to prepare and conduct a meaningful parent training. You may use the course texts, the SLCC library, or the internet to search for ideas.

Once you select a parent training, you will create a presentation that is both professional and informative. More information is posted on Canvas under "Parent Program Presentation."

Transfer, Certification, Licensure, and Employment Information

The Salt Lake Community College Education AS program alone does not lead to professional licensure. This program prepares students for application and transfer to other programs of study that could eventually lead to professional licensure. Professional licensure requirements vary from state-to-state. It is highly recommended that students consult in advance with the Utah State Board of Education, or similar agencies in other states, to find out more about eligibility for educational licensure. If you have difficulty finding the licensure requirements for your state or intended profession, please contact your academic advisor or SLCC's state authorization coordinator for help.
